Thursday

Dear Mr. Lynd. I am greatly distressed at having missed you today. Will you telephone to me from the Office tomorrow ^{Wednesday} & I might

So to see you there — unless you c^d. come to lunch with me at any hour you choose from 11 - to 3. Just as you please.

Yours very sincerely
A S Green.

England?'

Nov. 30. Dublin.

My dear W. Lynd - Your book followed me here,
and I have not yet recov-ered from the shock of your dedication! Its generosity is splendid, and your friend-ship warm & of such is an absolute joy.

I am glad you opened with your German comment.
How astonishing is that total essays, but that will be done this evening.

Meanwhile I send you my warm thanks for the volume, for your words of friendship, and for your remembrance which is so pleasant.

I am glad to be here.
It seems more home-like.
And one can watch from day to day how things move.
Æ has become a great force in the Convention, a real strength to us. Last week all seemed to be falling into ruin, but with the passing of the crisis new hope has come, and a settlement is not inconceivable. That is all one can say. The Union-men are,

I think, finding themselves up against more than they expected, & the plan is fitting too tight for them. They are perhaps learning something.

I hope you are better.
Would you have time to send me a little line, even a post-card - just to say how you are. Yours affly

Feb. 22 /12

My dear W. Lynd

What a dreadful care and anxiety to you. I am so friend, for I quite understand how these things of mind and spirit trouble one most, and the feeling of having to change one's trust - a hurried feeling to drink hearts.

But your wife seems to me to have so found a physician and so healthy & sane a mind, and so true affections that I hope for the very best.

I w^d. go to you if I could do anything - and you would ask me if there is anything at all I can do -

Your hearty friend of both of you

Dear Mr. Lynd -

Will you come & see me
next week - any time you choose.

Can you put in your paper or in any others that the Librarian Book Selection of the Roy. Dub. Soc. recently by a large majority refused to allow "the Making of Ireland" to be purchased for the Library of the Soc. That The Roy. Dub. Soc. is a public body with valuable privileges from the State.

(Doit, me)
They are the guardians of faith and morals.

Yours very sincerely

I got this news from a man acquaintance who was surprised!
